“ He’s a master colorist, whose abstractions are at the same time inviting, enticing, and playful while being energetic and invigorating. These powerful pieces certainly hold the wall.”

AMERICAN GRAFFITI

The contemporary collection "American Graffiti" by Dowling is a never-before-seen or sold extra-large-scale mixed-medium on canvas collection. Each masterpiece is large scale work that range in sizes from 5' X 5' to 5' X 15' in dimensions, museum mounted, and as of yet unframed.

The subject matter is that of abstract symbols, color fields, shapes, and NEW original pop imagery. They consist of various primary and secondary colors that overlap and form abstract patterns including: animals, sealife, fantasies, creatures, and spacelings as Dowling refers to them.

The pieces are interesting and unique in that the various shapes, patterns and fantasy worlds overflow the boundaries of Dowling's imagination and seamlessly mesh with one another to form a bright tapestry of various shapes, colors, worlds, and viewer impressions.

The work is a rare example of an evolution in the artist's signature impressionistic and surreal-style creating his own basis for modern pop-culture themed works that combine abstract colors and worlds interconnected on canvas. This is in line with the artist's now famous LONG ISLAND "Street Art" and diverse body of artworks and mediums that span his multi-decade career.

Quantum Multiverse is one of the masterpieces from Dowling's American Graffiti Collection. When John was a young boy he would often day dream and think of these spirograph style symbols. When ever he would dream, those same abstract patterns would appear everywhere. Even when he would squint his eyes these patterns, often when he was sleeping appeared. He calls them spacelings and their are thousands of them in each of these abstract "words" hidden in the dark energy throughout the multiverse. Dowling's imagination and paintings bring these spaclings to life. Kind of trippy but abstraction and scotomisation at its best.

SHADOWS ON THE HILLS

LIQUID PARADISE

MY STARTDUST MEMORY

John Dowling Fine Art & Exhibitions, LLC

Dowling's odyssey began in the '80s in the traditional darkroom experimenting with multiple exposure photography and hand-colored black and white prints. Once diagnosed with an incurable genetic mutation and forced to walk daily marathons to grow arteries because his organic arteries were being destroyed, his downtime was put to good use while recovering from this devastating illness. Utilizing his laptop, Dowling spent his time scanning and painting his photographs as a form of art therapy. Dowling is known as a master photographer and has created a tremendous amount of professional portraits including sittings with countless celebrities, models, politicians, as well as "walking portrait" sessions featuring wildlife, nature, as well as once in a century photojournalistic events. Later Dowling would superimpose numerous digital paintings, taking the most attractive and interesting portions, to create exquisite works of art. What makes Dowling's work so unique is his use of digitally painted abstract layers that cause each viewer to have different perceptions of what they are observing. It is a unique technique that leads viewers to have false affirmations of what they see, as well as challenges to the conscious mind to see what actually exists. The term for this psychological effect is Scotomisation. These shapes, patterns, and illusions often lead to the viewer working to find objects in his pieces and to moments when the individual has a "eureka moment" or epiphany. Dowling's "Miracle In The Making" Fine Art Collection is the first of his fine art to be released since the 80s. While he continues to create individual works for new collections, he is now receiving bids to purchase the entire "A Miracle In The Making Collection", which includes reproduction rights, while Dowling retains authorship rights. John Dowling Fine Art and Exhibitions, LLC now represents in addition to Dowling's own work a short list of international diversely talented artists from Dubai to Bulgaria. Dowling collaborates with them all to create new versions of his montages and paintings for his 2022 collection "I Create Therefore I am".

Dowling's Gallery

While Dowling has achieved milestones in art as far back as 1982, printing in traditional darkrooms for some of his original collectors like Muhammad Ali, John Forsythe, Charles Wang, Billy Joel, and a plethora of A list celebrities, VIPs, and billionaires. Dowling now adds the discovery of significant artists who deserve greater recognition to his journey. Some were unfairly marginalized, some were derailed for tragic reasons, and some slipped through the cracks of contemporary art history altogether.

Dowling and his artist collaborators as well as his curatorial board continue to illuminate the works of those artists who are true innovators and whose visual expressions are compelling contributions that broaden the scope of contemporary art history. His efforts to bring awareness to the diversity of great artists and promote world peace, has led to rediscovery, international exhibitions presented by John Dowling Fine Art and Exhibitions, LLC, and leading galleries around the United States. We have including a few hand picked pieces from the new 2023 American Graffiti Collection as well.
